PRICE - FERGUSON

The wedding of Miss Nancy Estelle Ferguson, daughter of Mr.and Mrs. James H. Ferguson, of Appomattox, and James Edward Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Price, of Gladys, Va., took place Saturday evening at 3:00 o'clock in the home of the bride. The Rev. J. Marshall Walker performed the ceremony before an altar of native greens, white gladioli and lighted candles. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a suit of Chinese red with black accessories, and a shoulder corsage of white roses.

Miss Mackie McCormic's was maid of honor and wore a suit of tan with black accessories and a shoulder corsage of white roses. Johnnie Glauner, friend of the groom, was best man. Miss Joyce McCormick provided the wedding music.

The couple left for a northern wedding trip and on their return will make their home in Lynchburg.

91-Year-Old Traveler Gets Chance to Climb Mountain

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—Mrs. Rosa B. Kellog has always wanted to climb a mountain. But now she is 91 and it seemed unlikely she would get the opportunity.

Recently, however, she got a chance and she was determined to realize her ambition despite her age. She plans to climb her mountain in Alaska this summer. She left recently on a travel tour.

"My friends seem to be worried about my going," said Mrs. Kellog as she went about packing for the trip.

"But I feel fine," she declared. "Why stay at home when I love to travel?"

Warned that living conditions might not be as comfortable as the ¶1 room home in which she lived, Mrs. Kellog replied:

"I wouldn't care if I had to sleep on the floor as long as I could join the fun with the young folks."

Barbers Invent Pole To Foil Town Jokers

SUPERIOR, Wis.—Two Superior barbers had trouble keeping a barber pole in front of their place of business. Several times poles have been carted off, even though they weighed about 200 pounds.

When city workers recently prepared to cut down a tree in the front of the shop of John F. Grant and Felix F. Cross, the two barbers asked that it be sawed off six feet from the ground.

The barbers peeled the bark off the stump and painted red and white and blue stripes on it. They don't expect to have further trouble.

Clifton Webb, Movie Baby Sitter, Catches Mumps

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Clifton Webb, the movie and stage star, who gained his greatest fame in the movies as a baby sitter, caught the mumps recently.

Seems he caught them from juvenile actress Gigi Perreau, with whom he was making a picture.

Webb, 59, acted as a baby sitter in the movie "Sitting Pretty."

Snorkel Causes Health Problems For Submariners

SAN FRANCISCO—The snorkel a new tube invented by the Germans to supply a submerged vessel with air for its men and its engines, presents a number of new complications to life aboard a sub, a navy medical officer reports.

Rear Adm. H. L. Pugh reports it can produce a physical effect sometime like being tossed 10,000 feet in the air.

Sudden changes in humidity can aggravate minor illnesses of those aboard.

The air pressure can vary so rapidly that it can cause men to bleed through their ears.

Despite the snorkel's merits as a mute of less constant source of fresh air to those submerged, it is possible that personnel cannot endure 60-day periods aboard. That was about the time limit on old-style submarines. It may have to be shortened.

These were among a long list of medical disclosures about submarine life reported by Admiral Pugh at a recent meeting of the American Medical association.

Endurance May Drop

The snorkel sticks out of the water a few feet. At the other end, where air is sucked in, is a valve which closes automatically when a wave engulfs it.

Despite this safety gadget, submarine compartments can become flooded because of a lag in the valve's operation. This happens when a wave hits and engulfs the open end, or when an inefficient helmsman fails to keep the ship at a certain level, or when there is a mechanical failure in the depth control apparatus.

The inrush of water floods man and machinery. The closing of the valve shuts off the air supply. But the engines keep going, rapidly gulping air. The engines act like vacuum pumps, decreasing atmospheric pressure.

This can produce thin air like that 10,000 feet above sea level. It hasn't caused any ill effects on personnel yet, but is a potential menace to men who need sure and steady hands and heads to keep the complicated machinery going.

Because the snorkel permits long periods of submerged cruising while the old-style submarine had to come up for air every night or so, crew endurance may be less than formerly.

New Hazards

Another medical hazard is the "lung" which permits men to escape individually from sunken submersibles. When a man is rising rapidly to the surface, the pressure of the water around him is decreasing so rapidly that he bubbles all the time. This can cause breakage in the air sacs of the lungs and can lead to air "clots" with fatal results.

All these are just added hazards of submarine life because of the changes made during and since World War II. The men still are subject to the old-time difficulties.

When a submarine shoves off, nearly everybody gets a cold. This quickly runs its course through the whole crew and then disappears because no outsider can come aboard to bring new sets of germs.
